World's Champion Will Work
Out Tonight at the Eagle's Hall

Ad Santel, world's light heavyweight champion, arrived in Ogden yesterday afternoon from Lava Hot Springs, Idaho, where he has been in training for some time for his match here January 8, against Jack Harbertson. Santel is in prime condition, according to his own statements, and will start his final training at the Eagle's gymnasium this evening. Local wrestlers are invited to go on the mat with Santel during his training period.

With the day of the match less than a week away, the tickets for the battle are going fast, according to H. E. Skinner, manager of the Alhambra theatre. Mail orders from all parts of the state were received yesterday as well as a number from Evanston, Wyoming, and Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

Harbertson, the Ogden star, is working out daily at the Diggins gymnasium and expects to be in first class trim when the go goes. The referee for the big contest will be selected during the week. Although no selection has been made, it is probable that Will Thornton, the master of referees, in Utah, will probably be the third man in the ring.

Upon arrival here Santel stated that the climatic conditions were always against a visitor, especially one who is connected with athletics, and for this reason he expects to put in some hard days in training.

Art Chester, the Idaho star, middleweight and Edna Peterson, both in Ogden and are also in training for their match. Both men hold their respective state titles in Utah and Idaho and are regarded as contenders. A purse of $200 has been placed for this match.

MOGULS POSTPONE
ANNUAL BALL MEET

Herrmann Due for Skids—
Final Decision on May's Games

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—The National baseball commission will meet in Cincinnati January 8 instead of the first Monday in January as prescribed by the rules, President Dan Johnson of the American league, announced today. The election of a chairman is to be decided.

It is inconvenient for President Heydler of the National league to attend a meeting next Monday," said Mr. Johnson. "He wrote to me about it and I communicated with Chairman Herrmann by long distance telephone today and it was then arranged for the meeting to take place January 8."

August Herrmann of Cincinnati has been chairman of the commission since it was formed in 1902. Seven of the eight clubs of the National league at the annual meeting last month in New York expressed themselves against his re-election. The Chicago, New York and Boston clubs of the American league, opposed Herrmann as they do Johnson as president of their own league, but were outvoted at their annual meeting.

The question of awarding third place money in the American league will be discussed at the commission's meeting. New York finished third with Carl Mays, in whose case Johnson ruled against New York, but who was retained on the pitching staff by virtue of an injunction. Except for games won by Mays, Detroit would have been third.

THE BEDBUG
(cimet lectularius)

W. W. HENDERSON, UTAH AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Professor of Zoology and Entomology

Bedbugs are found most abundantly in neglected households, but frequently in homes where cleanliness is of the highest order. Persons who exercise most vigilant care to keep the home free from a single intruder are sometimes shocked when their presence is discovered. It is not a disgrace to find that bedbugs occasionally get into the home, especially when it is known that they are so active as to walk from one house to another in a single night's search for food. The person who seeks for information on controlling bedbugs should in no sense be suspected as unclean.

Bedbugs are not spontaneously generated from filth, dirt, dark crevices, or old bedsteads as many suppose, but are hatched from eggs laid in safe retreats by the parent females. They require from one to several months to complete their growth and may live for many months or nearly a year. Single females are known to lay as many as two hundred eggs and may therefore be the means of providing a rapid increase if unchecked. They are capable of digesting a full meal every two or three days or they may survive for months without food. Being nocturnal in habit, they come out from their hiding places at night, seek human victims, and like mosquitoes, gorge themselves with blood in a few minutes and then scamper away into hiding.

Cleanliness and watchfulness are the first measures to be used against bedbugs. Hiding places and bedbug retreats should be eliminated. The old fashioned wooden bedsteads should be supplanted by metal beds. If there are bedbugs in the house they can usually be found by turning on the light. The bugs may then be captured and destroyed. Persons just moving into infested houses may need to use more violent methods. Pyrethrum powder is effective against bedbugs and may be blown into their retreats with a small blower. The powder and a blower may be purchased at most drug stores. Kerosene, benzene or gasoline will destroy the pests and may be applied to the retreats with a feather. If these are used they must be kept away from fire. Gasoline and benzene are especially volatile and should not be used in a room where fire exists. Fumigation with cyanide or with sulphur is very effective in completely exterminating bedbugs in the household, but should not be undertaken except by special direction.

the best of health, and this is an age of efficiency. The man who is full of "pep" and has every part of his machinery working in perfect order never allows anything to stop his progress, and will come out on top no matter what his handicap may be on the start.

The man who is physically fit will push his work under any condition; the man under par, the work is pushing him, and I say to you, my reader, he is a failure regardless of the amount of money he may have accumulated, if he had taken care of his health in proportion he would have made more money and been able to enjoy the fruits of his labor at the time of life when he ought to be in a position to slow up and devote some time to his family. I have talked to men who have fortunes, several automobiles, a summer home, a costly winter home, and a body which could be safely called a wreck, spending part of their time in some health resort at a sanitarium, what a pity for the rest of the family, what a disgrace to the man.

I want to say to you in closing that there is no need of any man getting in poor health if he will only use a little common sense regarding his everyday life. Do the things that nature requires, take time to eat, exercise, play, breathe, and sleep three hundred and sixty-five days each year.

By LEE PAPE

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Wilkins came to her front door and called me, saying Benny, will you come in and taind the baby while I go erround to the store?

Wich I went in, and the baby was in its go cart in the kitchen drinking milk out of a bottle with a thing on the end, and I sat there watching it and wondering wy they never eat anything but milk, thinking, I bet its only sooperstition, I bet they eat anything you give them.

And I picked up some bred crumbs off the kitchen table and pulled the bottle out of the baby's mouth and put the bred crumbs in, and it swallowed them without any expression, me thinking, Didnt I say it was only a sooperstition?

And I cut some little peeces of onion off of a half of a onion and put them in the baby's mouth, and it swallowed them with a little expression, but not much, me thinking, Gosh, I bet it was tired of milk long ago and nobody knew anything about it.

And I took a stuffed olive out of a bottle on the dresser and put it in its mouth, and it swallowed it with the most expression yet, so I put 3 more
